

Somersetshire Coal Canal Society

Role Description – Archivist

The Society has carried out extensive research into the history of the canal and its environment. During that time it has produced or procured records and documents. The role of the Archivist includes the following:

- To collect historic material relating to the canal and its environment
- To organise and preserve that material
- To advise the committee, upon request, about available archive material for a topic and suggest possible opportunities for its use in further research, restoration designs or marketing
